Never have I read a more entertaining romance, except maybe Mrs. Lane's first romance novel, The Royal Sheikh. The latest book left me on the edge of my seat and totally transported me to another world, where considerable wealth, beautiful people and lots of sand - oh, and a camel - are met with romance, intrigue and passion. There were moments when I felt I too could be the heroine, the story became so real - if only! Can't wait for the next book! Please keep writing.

This was an unputdownable read for me. Tassie the main female character is stranded in Khail after all planes were grounded following a volcanic ash storm which severely affected the visibility for pilots. Tassie manages to find a hotel slightly out of the way from the rest and one that is rather expensive, however, believing her insurance will cover all expenses she books a room and finds a taxi to transport her to the hotel. She finds herself sharing the cab with a rather handsome Arab who turns out to be a prince. On arriving at the hotel Tassie waits at reception while they check with her insurance company. The receptionist informs her that she is booked into a suite and all expenses are paid failing to mention that her expenses are being met by the Prince himself. As the story moves on a beautiful relationship is formed and Tassie soon falls for the charming prince. This does not come without its troubles as strong willed Tassie has a hard time understanding that she believes to be restrictions on the women of the prince's country. She soon learns that their cultures are very different. Just as things progress for the loved up couple the rebels take over the country and the royals have to flee to America or London for their own safety. Getting out of the country proves difficult and Tassie fears for their lives. This was a remarkable love story filled with all the elements a great romance should possess. I am a lover of romance, escapism and I love to feel the emotions of the characters I am reading. And the beautifully written characters of this story makes it easy to get inside of each character's head and feel what they are feeling. I fell in love with the prince myself while reading this story. That's how I know I have read a great book by a talented author. A MUST READ: For romance lovers all over. I cannot wait to read the next story.

The Sheikh's Beloved is a beautiful romantic story. I had a hard time putting this book down. Ms. Lane was able to hold my interest from the very first page to the very end. Tassie the main female character was stranded in Khail which is located in the Middle East. While trying to deal with the issues of finding a hotel to stay she encountered a handsome stranger. Unbeknownst to her this stranger, who is an Arab prince named Najid, was instrumental in her securing a suite in one of the most expensive hotels in the area. During her time in Khail a relationship developed between Tassie and Najid. They grew very close, however that this relationship was not without its problems. It was difficult for Tassie to deal with a culture that placed restrictions on how a woman should conduct herself. I loved that Tassie was able to eventually look past these restrictions and was able to come to terms with the differences in culture. This was an easy read. The story was very descriptive and the locations were easy to visualize. This is my first time reading Katheryn Lane's work and it will definitely not be my last. N.B I received a copy of this book from the author to provide a honest review.

Anyone reading Katheryn Lane's novels should be aware that the genre is not intended to be in the same literary genus as Wuthering Heights. It is a great romance and it is readable. The storyline is a bit farfetched but that is part of its charm. Tassie is a fully realized character with flaws and indomitable spirit. She is thoroughly modern and western, this makes for some very interesting dialog when it comes to understanding a culture that seems to be anti-female. The story begins with a disaster of epic proportion, a volcano has erupted and there is black ash so thick in the skies that all flights are grounded. Tassie is left to her own devices to find lodgings and when her search turns up a slightly out of the Hotel that is way beyond her means she books it, believing that the expense will be covered by her insurance company. She grabs a cab, and heads towards her hotel. There is another passenger in the cab, a handsome Arab, not just any Arab but a real life Prince. They talk a bit on the ride and when they reach the hotel. She is concerned that the insurance may not pick up the tab but breathes a sigh of relief when the clerk informs her that her room and all expenses have been covered. What the clerk fails to tell her is that it is covered by the Prince and not the insurance company. Their relationship blossoms but not without a few hiccups along the way, the biggest of them being complete culture clashes. The story comes to a climax with a daring escape as the Royals flee their country in fear for their lives. You will fall in love with the Prince for sure but you will also come to see yourself in Tassie as she wrestles with the differences of the culture of the man that has fallen in love with against what she has been taught and what she believes. You will not want to put it down and will be searching for the next installment in this series.
