Best to date - can it get any better? Every thing I ask for in a mystery and even better, there is no graphic sex and violence to slow the plot down. Take a beautiful nuclear fission expert and some religious fanatics and mix them together with psychological damage and hypnotism and then send Ben Hood to the rescue and you won't be able to put this down. I hope the author, Drew Lindsay, will start the 14th soon.

I just finished reading Atomic Blonde and I'm very very happy with Ben Hood. The story was fantastic and Ben was the best! You know, you have to love Rodney and Rose....Rodney is sooooo funny, I can't help but laugh when he tries to get mad at Ben...lol. I hope we see more of Sarah...a very brave girl! Keep up the good work Drew.....you're the best!

Drew you have done it again with an excellent read and Ben Hood at his very best in this one. Most enjoyable suspense filled book and hard to put down once started. Look forward to your next one. To first timers to the Ben Hood series, you will not be disappointed - Drew Lindsay can certainly tell a good story.

In this case 13 is not an unlucky number, it gives us another winner in the Ben Hood series that started with The Coral Sea Affair. I have read all Drew's Ben Hood books, in fact have read them all more than once - both for the great stories and just plain good entertainment; none have disappointed. The Atomic Blonde is the best so far - hired, fired, hired and fired again, Ben keeps his moral compass set on doing right by Felicity and doing wrong by the villains as only he can - with tenderness and deadly force as required. A man's man who respects women, gentle or tough on them as required, who cooks like a gourmet, and in the end sets everything right. His interplay with Rodney and Rose throughout each case provides timely relief from the seriousness of the situation and yet we know that Ben will prevail over all obstacles thrown at him. For the new reader - take a chance, you won't regret it. From a devoted fan - please Drew, can we have some more?

Im awaiting the next Ben Hood and filling in with one or two other bubblegums but really, come on Drew I cant wait, I suppose the reality is Ben cannot continue forever. Great reads buddy, Keep them coming Another great read by Drew Lindsay. I can never put his books down! I can only start these books when I know I don't have anything pressing due at work or school. I'd rather read his book and delay everything else.

Ben Hood has gotten out of his apartment. He's bought a small farm. He's actually been walk about for a while. Long enough to grow a beard. He gets a call from Rod and heads to his house. Upon arrival and meeting with Rod and Rose he's given another bodyguard assignment. One he doesn't really want. This one is for an extremely wealthy man. In fact 'stinking rich" doesn't come close to describing the wealth of Errol Jackson. Seems his Goddaughter is a real PITA and he needs someone to be with her for a couple of weeks. The Goddaughter, Felicity, gets into bar fights, has lovers fighting over her and is, in short, one difficult knockout to look after. Oh and she is a knockout. She's also unstable and has mental problems and is also an expert in nuclear fission. Since Hood is in his fifties her Godfather thinks he will be better able to handle Felicity. Of course he doesn't tell Ben about her education or mental problems. He just wants her looked after for a couple of weeks. Of course Felicity isn't interested in having a bodyguard. Especially a man in his fifties. She sets out to prove just how much she isn't interested in having Ben Hood around. Great. Ben thinks he should have stayed in the bush. So begins one damned fine read. This one has Al Qaeda operatives, a nuclear bomb, a threat to Australia to include the deaths of hundreds of thousands, Govt and law enforcement playing catchup and Ben Hood in the middle of the whole mess. A more than capable Ben Hood. Just one great read. Five stars and then some. Ben rocks.
